THE SPELL.

Oh, the spell, the wonderful spell!
That's exciting the young and the old as well;
Gathering the people from far and from near,
To join in the class—Now isn't it queer?
spelling and guessing at words that are tough,
Innocent speller, it seems hard enough
That for dropping an "I" an "E" or an "A,"
They are sent to the rear in utter dismay.
Whilst the rest of the class and audience as well,
Will lay back and laugh at the fun of the spell.

Oh, the spell the laughing spell!
To attend it the people are rushing pell mell;
And when they get there they are struck with surprise,
When they find there are "E's" where they thought there were "I's,"
And when they stick in the "I's" where there ought to be "E's"
They set down in disgust and say confound the bees,
I mind one old lady used a "K" for a "C,"
And said, "when I was a gal that's how they teached me,"
And as she stepped down and out there went up a yell,
And she said, "consarn the critter who invented the spell."

Oh, the spell, that extraordinary spell!
What fun it creates no language can tell;
There is young Spriggins, he looked so forlorn
When his gal cantered off at the toot of the horn,
Trembling blushing, for the rear she did strike,
Cause she and Mr. Webster did not spell it alike
Again the shrill notes of the trumpet are heard:
This time an old Patriarch's been mangling a word,
And the youngsters all set up a shout and a yell
And the aged man wishes the spells were in—

Oh, the spell, the fun-making spell!
Go there if you're sick and you'll be apt to get well,
Why there is Jim Leathers, he looks like a spook,
His gal has been wrestling with the toughest word in the book,
She did pretty well, but Jerusalem, just hear
That infernal old horn, she's now back at the rear
Whilst an urchin near by on cussedness bent
Shrieks out, "Miss Muggins, yer can't spell worth a cent,"
Then with vengeance that female upon that same urchin fell,
And it seemed a young corpse must emerge from that spell.

Oh, the spell, the sensational spell!
There never was anything took half so well,
There's a chap who imagines he's old Webster himself,
And all other spellers he can lay on the shelf,
He's mistaken and tramps off at the sound of the horn,
Looking like a fellow who is only half born.
He was a sad looking mortal as away he did point
For the rear, disgusted, and his jaw out of joint;
And from the noise and confusion it's easy to tell
That the people are tickled to death with the spell.

HULDAH.

A TRUE STORY OF 1812.

"Without faith it is impossible to please God." Tenderly, reverently even, the gray-haired man repeated the words.

Huldah's head gave an impatient toss. Many a time had she discussed theological questions with her father, and her quick mind had often proved a match for his more mature judgment; but when he took refuge in Scripture, as he was now doing, she could go no further.

The last blue plate was placed beside its companion on the dresser with an energy that threatened its destruction. "Patience," "waiting" and "faith" were words she could not understand. She herself was overflowing with life.

"Faith without works is dead, anyway." She spoke more to herself than to her father, but some one behind caught the words and merrily called out, "Who did you say was dead anyway? Have you been murdering?"

Huldah knew the voice and turned with a smile. The good-natured, handsome fellow who entered read his welcome in her face.

"What's the news, Si?" she asked.

"News enough, I should think. Those rascally Britishers are up to all sorts of dodges. Their yessels are all along the coast, and nobody's safe. We thought they only wanted to get our seamen, but they are robbing villages and burning vessels, and I don't know what. I'd like a chance to give it to 'em once! Guess they'd find that a 'Yankee' is good for something!"

Standing in the doorway, his tall form seeming still taller against the back-ground of a sea and sky, Josiah Bates really looked as if he might keep an army at bay. And Huldah was pleased to hear his threats, for, to tell the truth, a faint suspicion of his cowardice had crossed her mind when Si had pleaded sickness and remained at home when his vessel sailed.

"We must trust in God. He's our only hope." The gray-haired father spoke, and again came the impatient toss of the girl's head.

"Guess 'twill take something besides faith to deal with Englishmen. Who was it? Cromwell, I believe, used to tell his soldiers to 'trust in God and keep their powder dry,' and I think the last part of the advice the most important."

The old man made no reply. He was back in Revolutionary days, dealing with Englishmen himself. Many a time had long lines of soldiers followed the "rud a-dub-dub" of that dusty drum hanging on the wall.

Huldah had no such memories. More important to her was the fact that the eggs must be gathered before dark. She lingered a minute on the back porch, half-hoping, half-fearing that Josiah might follow, for she had seen from the first that his visit was not an aimless one. The minute grew to half an hour, for Josiah did follow, and thus Huldah listened to the old, yet ever-new story. Very sweet it sounded in her ears. Fancy clothed the man before her with every virtue, and woman like, she was ready to fall down and worship the creature of her imagination.

"Oh, Si! Hullie! Come with me to the beach! There's a vessel in sight that looks like a man-o'-war. It's growing dark and I can't quite make out, but I think she's coming to an anchor."

And Josiah's question was left unanswersd while the two hastened with Cousin Hannah to the shore.

It certainly was a man-of-war, and a British one at that. It appeared to be anchored, and probably meant mischief.

"What can we do?" Hannah turned a white, scared face toward her cousin. "They'll carry off our cattle and rob our orchards, and maybe burn houses! Our men are 'most all away, you know."

Huldah was not frightened. She felt that two could put ten thousand to flight, provided the two were she and Josiah. Still plain common sense taught her that something must be done.

"We must send to Boston for help. There are soldiers there."

"Boston? Why, Boston is more than twenty miles away!"

"But it's the nearest place where we can get help. They," nodding her head towards the war-ship, "won't land on this strange coast till daylight, and by that time men can travel from Boston. Yes, Josiah, you must go as soon as you can."

Evidently Josiah did not exactly agree with the girl. He looked down, kicked the moss at his feet, coughed, and finally stammered something about danger.

The clear blue eyes looked at him searchingly.

"Surely you are not afraid, Si?"

No, he wasn't "afraid," but he didn't like to "leave her unprotected."

"Nonsense! There's no time to lose. You might go in a boat; but I think on horseback would be the best. Be off," half-laughing, "be off! or I'll go myself."

And he was forced to leave them. The two girls lingered awhile, watching the distant vessel fade into darkness, and the coming out of the wakeful stars. They did not feel alarmed. Help was sure to arrive before morning. But, when she went home, Huldah securely fastened the door of every outbuilding. "If such a thing should happen as their coming ashore they'll have some work in opening doors around our premises," she said.

There was but little sleep in the village that night. When the small hours came and the cocks began to crow many eyes were strained to watch the road from Boston, for by this time all the people had heard of the threatened danger and expected aid.

Four o'clock came, then five, and the east was growing light. Still no soldiers, no mesenger.

It was certainly time for them. Could Josiah have been harmed? Had he not reached the city? Huldah' breath came fast at the thought. What if she had been the means of sending him into danger?

But there was a movement now on board the vessel. An old tar, watching through his spy-glass, said they were lowering boats.

"Heaven help us!" exclaimed one. There was scarcely an able-bodied man in the village. Some were in the army, some at sea. What could a few old men and defenseless women and children do to protect themselves?

"Let us pray," said Huldah's gray-haired father, and to the church they all went.

"Not all." While those assembled knelt to pray, Huldah and Hannah, each bearing a drum, hurried to the shore and hid behind the rocks. One long look they cast up the road; but nobody was in sight.

Then they watched the boats as each measured stroke of the oars brought them nearer and nearer, and the white cuffs of the officers could be seen against the dark blue of their jackets. And now the words of command could be distinctly heard. The time for action had come.

Suddenly, loud and long, sounded the call of the drums!

The boats stopped. There was a hurried consultation, the drums still beating as fircely as two girls could make them. The British feared to land. This little village by the sea must be garrisoned. The boats were turned about. They were soon received on board the war-ship, and she, like a huge vulture cheated of its prey, raised her broad wings and slowly sailed away.

Then, how the people from the church came flocking around Huldah and Hannah! How they praised them as the deliverers of the place! Gratitude was written on every face.

Huldah was glad when she could return to the quiet of her home once more. Above all the praises she had received she prized her father's caresses as he whispered:

"It was your works that saved us after all, my child."

Then her tears came. "Father, do you know that all the time I was behind the rocks I thought of you, praying, and I believe it was because of your faith God turned the minds of the British sailors."

The hens were cackling and cows lowing, impatient for their breakfast. What did they know or care about their narrow escape?

Huldah unbarred and unlocked the door of the corn-house. The great pile of yellow ears in the corner had been disturbed. She pushed a part of it aside. Something moved. There was an upheaval and then emerged the head shoulders and body of a man.

It was Josiah Bates!

Huldah gave a little start of fright, a laugh that sounded like a sob, then turned and ran from the place.

Straight to her own room she went, and burried her face in the pillow. Her idol had fallen! The man she almost loved was a coward! Bitter tears she shed over her departed ideal. This man could never again take its place.

And yet she had reason to be glad that the discovery had not come too late.

An hour afterward she was moving about her household work, with the same cheerful smile that she always wore, and no one ever knew through her why the troops from Boston failed to come.

We need not add that Josiah Bates never dared to repeat the question which had been left unanswered on the evening when the man-of-war anchored in the harbor.

STORIES OF THE ELEPHANT

They Exhibit a Strong Fondness for Drunken Men.

Jack Eaves was the keeper for a while of the elephant Tippoo Saib, one of the largest and fiercest elephants ever known in this country. Tippoo Saib, had the longest tusks of any elephant. They were over ten feet long, and he would manage 'em in a way that was terrible to other people, though very convenient to himself, openin' 'em very wide or bringin' 'em both together to a point, just as he chose.

They finally had to saw these tusks off, and Jack Eaves put the shortened tusks to a use which I don't think could ever possibly enter anybody's head, except his own. He put his money in 'em—made a savin's bank of one of the cavities in the hollow of the tusk.

He had previously kept his loose money around his clothes or hidden in the circus tent, but he had been robbed, and he made up his mind to find a safe place, and in Tippoo Salb's trunk his money was safe.

Elephants, as is well known, are very fond of whisky, and a female elephant, known as little Betsy, used to go on a drunk regularly every Sunday along with a chap called "Long John," her keeper. Whenever "Long John" would want a whisky he would ask for it in the name of "Little Betsy." He had a great solicitude about Betsy's ears, that were very sensitive to cold, and one time, when they were showin' out West quite late in the autumn, he said to the manager of the show:

"You'd better get some whisky for Betsy, or she'll freeze; her ears are beginnin' to freeze already."

"How much shall I get?" asked the manager.

"Oh," said Long John, "a couple of buckets."

The manager opened his eyes at this wholesale order.

The two buckets were got, and over a bucket and a half was given to Little Betsy, and Long John partook very liberally of the balance. In an hour or two Little Betsy and Long John were drunk together. The elephant would roll over, and kick up her huge heels, and then gettin' up again would seize Long John playfully in her trunk, and toss him over her back, and pick him up again, and the two would have a regular drunken spree.

And every now and then Little Betsy would give a sort of grunt, a noise that sounded just like laughin', and that Long John swore was intended for a laugh.

It is one of the most curious things in the world, that elephants are so very forbearing to and considerate of drunken men. This "Long John" when he was drunk used to go round the two elephants of the show, whom nobody else dared to bother, and of whom he himself was afraid when sober—Canada and Sultan—and would fool with 'em, and swing on their tusk, and toss their trunks about, and then would fall at their feet asleep.

And they wouldn't hurt him 'emselves—would be as careful of him as if he was a baby elephant—and wouldn't even allow any of the boys to play any tricks upon him.

A TUB STORY.

New tubs, is it? Well, Mr. Carpenter, no doubt they'll be a dale nater than the ould ones, but they'll never be the same to me.

Am I attached to the ould tubs? Why, sure, if you'll believe it, I've the best of reasons for bein' attached to them, for they saved my loife, indade they did, as I'm a living sinner.

Master and Missus, as you must know, are well-off people, with lashings of silver and the loike of that, and at the time I'm spaking of they kept them same in the house.

They had no more fear of being robbed than I have at this minute, and they just turned a bit of a pantry key on them at night, and thought of no danger at all.

And no more did I, until the day came whin there was a grand party at my missus' daughter's, and she and he went off to it together.

"We mightn't be home to-night, Biddy," says she; "but you'd not feel afraid of staying in the house along with Nora?"

"And why should I, ma'am?" says I. Lord help us, how little we know of what's comin'! "Why should I, ma'am?" says I. "There's no ghosts in it, I'm sartin."

And off they went together, him and her, and Master Alfred; and about nine o'clock Nora and me fastened the doors, and went to bed.

Now, I've a corn that hurts me wonderfully because it's on the joint of my big toe, and nothing aises it but soaking it in sodawater.

So, after I'd been in bed an hour or more, that corn began to burn and smart to that degray I wos wild, and I thought to myself I'd go down into the kitchen, and soak my feet well, and pray the saints to better it.

So, not to wake Nora, I slipped out as soft as silk, and down the stairs, and never lighting a light, for it was as bright as day with the moon.

I just let the water in the tubs, and stepping on a chair, sat on the wan of 'em wid me feet in the other, and let the warm water run, and I was getting a dale of comfort, when, all in a sudden, I heard a noise that made the blood in me veins run cowld.

It was steps and the jingling of silver in the dining-room, and somebody coming through the passage-way to the kitchen.

I'm a little woman, by the grace of heaven, and I can slip in almost anywhere, and it came into me mind that thin was the time to slip, and down I went into the tub, letting the cover down over me, with just my finger in the crack to get a peep, and if I didn't see enough to satisfy me.

Two men—bad luck to them!—wid crape over their faces, and pistols in their hands.

"I told you there was no one here, Jim," says one.

And I knew his voice, and the hands of him, with a crooked finger on one—a man that had been pretending to want work of the master.

"I heard something," says he, "and I'll look about me."

Then he poked around, paping over and into everything.

"The family is out," said he, "but that divil of a Bridget might be here, or the other girl, Nora."

"They're safe asleep upstairs," says the first.

"They'd better stay there," says the other, "for I'd think nothing of silencing the two. This is a good haul, Jack—solid stuff."

I'd as soon put a bullet through a screeching woman as not," said the other. "See here—here's a pocket-book."

It was mine, with jist ten shillings in it, but I didn't mind me money at that minute.

They took it out and counted it and divided it, and they seemed in no hurry to go, the villains.

"The silver is in the bags," I heard them say.

"Maybe there's clothes in the tub," says the one; and he lifted the lid of the one next to me.

My heart gave a great flop, and I gave myself up for gone.

"You'd be an idiot to take wet clothes along with you," said the other.

"Here, while we're waiting for the chance to go, let's have a bite. Here's a good leg of mutton and some bread."

The impudence of the thaves!

But sure the next minute I'd just lifted me head to pape again, when crack came the lid on it, and I knew the craythers were sitting on the tubs, taking their supper.

I was nearly dead with the blow, and I'd nave smothered but for a hole in the lid that was there, glory to heaven!

And I lay still, doubled up like a frog and heard them chew.

And wither it was the fright or the closeness, I don't know, but I fainted dead that minute.

Whin it was daylight, Nora waked and missed me, and dressed and came down.

The minute she saw what had happened, she rushed out to the street shrieking for help, and in came the police and neighbors, and sure they said I was in the robbery, and had let the thaves in, and me lying unknownst in the tub useless.

They sent Nora for master and missus, and nobody had the sense to look for me, until missus, heaven bless her, says, says she.

"I'd trust Biddy with untould gold. Sure they've killed her. Look the house through.

And then she turned so faint that master run to the tub for water, and lifting the lid, sure there was I, with a broken head, and no knowledge in it.

And the wonder is I didn't get carried to the dead-house and identified for somebody else, the way it happened to my cousin Samuel that came back from a bit of journey to find them "waking" him, being took for his own ghost.

They took me out, and sure getting me straight was a hard job, Nora said, I'd been doubled up that long, but I came to at last; and it was owin' to my seein' them, and being able to swear who wan of thim was, that master and missus got back the silver, and the thaves were sent to goal.

"I wish you'd poked your ugly head out of that tub, Miss Bridget," says one of them in the coort.

"But, bless the tubs, I didn't," says I, "and here I am to confound ye."

Yes, Mr. Carpenter; now you've got the whole story, and make the new tubs if you like; but give me a bit of the ould ones to remimber thim by, 'av ye plaze.

A Reminiscence of Gov. Morgan.

A neighboring merchant made the remark in my hearing, "We buy goods and loose money. Morgan buys goods and makes money." The meaning was that Morgan generally struck the market in the right way and at the right time, while others so often made blunders. Another old merchant exclaimed, "Look at that Morgan that is buying up everything. A little while ago he came here green, and now he can give his note for $50,000." The only mistake in the remark was that Morgan never was green. Politicians made the same mistake. They supposed that a man just inducted into office would, for a while at least, need leading strings. Morgan, however, showed himself immediately the master of the situation either in business or in public life. He met every exigency with surprising readiness. At one time, for instance, he purchased an immense quantity of tea at public auction sale, and the auctioneers told him that the amount was rather large for one man's note. Morgan's reply was: "I will give you your own paper instead of mine." He went in Wall street and bought a sufficient quantity of that very firm's paper to meet the bill, and he never had to repeat the lesson.

Not False.

Old Nelse Patmore was justice of the peace. He could neither read or write, but his friends assured him that such accomplishments were merely side issues. One day Jack Maine sued the Commonwealth for false imprisonment. He employed excellent legal council and every one thought he would surely gain the case. When the cause came up for trial the judge said:

"Young man, de 'dictment says dat yer wants damages for false 'prisonment?"

"That is exactly what we want, your honor," said Maine's lawyer.

"Uh, huh."

"And we think, your honor, that we are entitled to five thousand dollars damages."

"Uh, huh," handling his papers.

"We claim that Mr. Maine's imprisonment was false."

"Uh, huh."

"And we can prove it."

"Uh, huh. Genermen yer say dat de man's 'prisonment was false."

"Yes, your honor."

"Uh, huh. He went ter jail, didn' he?"

"Oh, yes."

"Uh, huh. What am de meanin' o' false? Suthin what doan 'zist, ain' it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Wall, dis man went ter jail. Dat's a fack ain' it?"

"Yes your honor."

"Dat 'zisted, didn' it?"

"Oh yes."

"Dat was't false, den. De 'cision o' dis cou't am dis. De generman claimed to hab been 'prisoned falsly. De proof shows dat de State didn' perten' ter put him in jail, but did put him dar. De cou't hol's dat der wan't nuthin' false 'bout dat. Now ef de State had done it, dat wouldn' been false 'prisonment. I'll jes' sen' de generman back ter jail an' fling de lawyers in de cost."

HUMOROUS.

We can discover no traces of a h ness shop ever being called a bri chamber.

P. GRAY MEEK, Chairman

A Disgraceful Controversy.

The acrimony which characterizes the contest for the republican presidential nomination is expressibly painful. It forces the conviction that all the honored leaders of the grand old party are alike tainted with corruption. Such a knowledge can afford pleasure to no one. It must be humiliating to all.

The friends of Blaine charge Mr. Edmunds with having dabbled in stocks and bonds of a railroad which obtained value by legislation promoted by him. Mr. Edmunds by implication admits the soft impeachment. The friends of Edmunds charge Blaine with the same crime. The friends of Blaine plead guilty but assert that what Blaine did Edmunds did also.

There is no doubt that the charges in both cases are strictly true. But what good can be accomplished by parading them before the public? If the party was better than the culprits in this case the public would be spared and both men quietly dropped into the disgraceful retirement they deserve. It is the rule of logic that when rogues fall out honest men will come by their own, however, and this controversy will probably end in turning all the rascals out.—Harrisburg Patriot.

The Republican State Conventions

The following ends up the list of the state conventions and all the delegates to the National Convention have been elected. The result of last week's conventions was this:

Maine instructs for Blaine.

Massachusette is for the best man.

Kansas passed no instructions, but expressed a preference for Blaine by ballot.

Vermont is for Edmunds to the end.

New Hampshire delegates are divided in their choice between Blaine, Arthur and Edmunds.

Virginia Straightouts indorsed Blaine and denounced Arthur.

West Virginia passed Blaine resolutions.

Iowa is solid for Blaine.

Kentucky for Blaine.

Maryland Nevada for Blaine.

Minnesota for Blaine.

Rhode Island for Arthur.

Oregon for Blaine.

California for Blaine.

Nebraska for Blaine, but no instructions.

North Carolina for Arthur.

Furious Forest Fires.

Many Mountains all Over the State Ablaze.

Large Quantities of Timber Destroyed by the Raging Element—Coal Mines in Danger—Fears of Great Loss.

WILKESBARRE, May 2.—Mountain forest fires have been raging fiercely in this vicinity lately, but the first serious damage was reported this afternoon. White Haven and the neighboring hills caught on fire, and for a time the town was in great danger, as a strong wind was blowing. The fire department of this city was sent to its aid, and with the assistance of the whole population of the place eventually subdued the fire without loss other than a large quantity of timber. At California, a lumbering town near White Haven, a fierce fire started and eleven houses, occupied by men engaged in lumbering, were burned. Two bridges on the Bear Creek branch of the Lehigh Valley railroad were destroyed, as was also the stables of Albert Lewis & Co., lumber contractors. In the latter eleven horses perished. In this fire also a large quantity of valuable timber was destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $50,000.

A Town in Ashes.

Terrible Loss of Property in the Clearfield Regions.

HOUTZDALE, Pa., May 2.—For some days past the woods in the vicinity of Brisbin and Houtzdale have been on fire in different places. No decided move was made toward stamping it out, and it gradually drew near the town of Brisbin. This morning a heavy gale from the westward set in and blew the flames in the direction of Hoover, Hughes & Co.'s mill. Men were promptly put to work fighting the fire fiend, but without avail. Shortly after seven o'clock the hose, which has always been kept in readiness for an emergency of this kind, was played upon all parts of the mill. At 12 o'clock the whistle sounded an alarm of fire and the most strenuous exertions were made to save the structure, but without avail. It finally caught and in a short time the greedy flames were doing their fearful work in the immense lumber piles. Brisbin is situated between two hills, the mill being at the western end of the town and with a steady gale, carrying the flames from house to house it was but a short time until the space between the hills was a seething mass of flame. We have no means of estimating the loss, but it is enormous. Hooyer, Hughes & Co.'s mill and lumber yards, their office, Hoover's stores, Simon Dinger's store, Theigot hall and at least 250 other buildings were burned. But few people sayed anything and the scene is agonizing in the extreme. Over one hundred families were bereft of everything in the world save the clothing the wore.

The following call for assistance has been issued: "We the committee of relief for Houtzdale, appointed at a general meeting of the citizens appeal to the benevolent citizens of the state of Pennsylvania for relief for the 5,500 needy citizens of our sister borough of Brisbin who were this day burned out of house and home. Money, clothing and provisions are needed." Thos. R. Carboy, chief burgess; W. H. Patterson, secretary; Theo. VanDuzen, treasurer.

Large Amount of Lumber Destroyed.

EPORIUM, Pa., May 2.—Forest fires are raging all through this section. The season has been unusually dry and the wind is blowing a perfect gale from the west sweeping the fire through the forest with great velocity and destroying a large amount of property. At Sterling Run, nine miles from Eporium, several buildings belonging to the tannery company were burned to-day and a large mill was also destroyed. The village was in imminent danger and was saved by aid from Renova. Two families are reported lost, and it is feared the loss of life will be great. At Swissment, fifteen miles west of here, two mills with a large amount of lumber were destroyed.

FIRES IN THE COAL REGIONS.

MT. CAMEL, Pa., May 2.—A heavy wind storm visited Northumberland county to-day and fanned to the increased fury of the forest fires, which are destroying much valuable timber on the mountains. The works of Charles Woods, together with 5,000 cords of charcoal, were destroyed to-day.

Burning Timber Tracts.

ASHLAND, Pa., May 2.—Extensive forest fires are raging in this region. The Ashland fire department has been ordered to be in readiness for service at the State Miners' Hospital. Workmen are now fighting the flames near the building, which is surrounded by volumes of smoke. The loss to the timber tracts will be large.

Williamsport Visited by Another Fire.

WILLIAMSPORT, May 2—A fire which broke out in South Williamsport this afternoon burned the saw mill of Valentine Luppers, entailing a loss of over $20,000; insurance $9,000. It also destroyed five dwelling houses, three barns and several small buildings on Louisa and Elmira streets, causing a loss of between $8,000 and 10,000. The fire started in the carpenter shop of Samuel Hedricks who was lying inside, intoxicated. He was seriously burned before being rescued and his clothing and $500 in cash, which he had on his person, were destroyed. After destroying Lupper's mill and a lot of lumber the fire was extinguished. The rolling mill was saved.

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, MAY 8TH, 1884.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

—Moonlight rambles.

—Rain, mud and water this week.

—Dry, warm, windy, dusty and smoky last week.

—Read the three new adyertisements in this issue.

—Read H. H. Weiser's letter, published in another column.

—Millheim B. & L. Association meets next Monday evening.

—To both our taverns license was granted at the last term of court.

—The shade trees along our streets have put on their beautiful foliage.

—Mr. Ed. Hoover of Sunbury, was visiting at Thomas Frank's last week.

—Gen. Beaver, of Bellefonte, will do the speaking at Milton on Decoration day.

—White vests are said to be fashionable for gentlemen this spring and summer.

—Another lot of shade trees was planted by several of our citizens last week.

—Nomadic tribes are starting on their summer trips. Any horses to trade?

—Miss Lizzie Harter is spending the week at Spring Mills with Mrs. John Grenoble.

—Town was very smoky last Friday, owning to extensive mountain fires around us.

—Some of the fellows who doffed their flannels last week are shivering this week.

—Some serious cases of Spring fever were noticeable last week around our street corners.

—Job work done neatly at this office and at prices as low as anywhere else. Bring your orders.

—Our neighbor, Mr. James D. Lose, will please accept our thanks for a liberal mess of fresh fish.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company have ordered 137 new locomotives at the Altoona shops.

—The frame work of the new photo graph gallery on North street is up and the building under roof.

—We haven't heard of any leap year matches yet. What's wrong, girls? Or don't you care to tell.

—That unwelcome ordeal—house cleaning—is a thing of the past, at least for a spell of six months.

—Druggist Eisenhuth reports a rapidly growing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders.

—Mr. Frank Musser, of Aaronsburg, went to Ohio to enter the law department of one of its universities.

—Clymer Musser was home from Lewisburg last week, spending a few days with his parents and friends.

—The churches were crowded last Sunday and eloquent sermons were delivered by the officiating ministers.

—Rumor talks of a birthday party to come off in a few weeks not very far from the JOURNAL office. More anon.

FOR SALE.—About one thousand feet of Dry Linn Boards. Inquire at this office. W.
tf.

—Bellefonte is making arangements to organize a base ball club, expecting to take a solid hand in the national game.

—If you owe us any subscription moneys, please settle up. It takes money to defray the expenses of a printing office.

—Doc. Harter was after the speckled beauties last Monday and succeeded in catching some 30. He is quite an expert at angling.

—Some remarkable cures in this vicinity of long continued and obstinate deases are atributed to McDonald's Blood Purifier.

—In Michigan farmers who use wagons with tires not narrower than 3½ inches are entitled to a rebate of 25 per cent. of their road tax.

—It affords us pleasure to state that Mr. G. W. Stover of Penns Creek has very much improved since last week, being able to move about.

OUR SICK.—Mr. Hauck is said to be improving slowly. Mr. B. F. Miller does also show signs of improvement. No change in Mrs. G. W. Stoyer's condition.

—If you are pleased with the JOURNAL, and we think you are, hand it to your neighbor, if he is not a subscriber and induce him to put his name on our subscription list.

—Mrs. Maria Weaver advertises the spring announcement of her popular Millinery shop. We advise our lady readers to call on her and be benefited by the favorable bargains she offers.

—That tip-top farmer, Mr. I. J Noll, improved the outbuildings on John Reighard's farm, south of town, by several coats of white wash, making them look fresh and clean. Such work admits of imitation.

—The Albrights are having a boom at their shops. They are busy from morning till night turning out new and repaired conveyances. Glad to see it thus.

—The council has issued lettings for the construction of several crossings and boardwalks in town. A number of free holders were notified to repair their side walks or build new ones.

—Landlord Musser of the Millheim Hotel is improving his house by enlarging the dining room and building a new kitchen. William is full of enterprise and always bent on making his hotel as comfortable and convenient as possible.

—Mr. Jonathan Harter removed the large flower bed in the centre of his front yard in order to make the ground free of obstructions for croquet playing. Quite accomodating to the lovers of that game—but that is his nature all through.

—Mrs. A. Walter, since her return from Philadelphia, last week was staying with her parents, Mr. & Mrs. D. A. Musser on Main street. The Walter residence opposite the JOURNAL presented a deserted appearance during that time.

—Menamin's Printers' Circular says that the three oldest living compositors in Pennsylvania reside in Harrisburg. They are General Simon Cameron, aged eighty-six years; Geo. W. Scott, aged eighty-five years and Jacob Babb, aged eighty-three years.

—Read what Dinges, Vonada & Co., tne wide-awake merchants at Coburn, have to say in their new advertisement. But do not stop with the reading—go there and get the benefit of fair dealing and first-class goods offered at the most reasonable prices.

—You will find Dr. A. W. Hafer's professional card in another column. Dr. Hafer located in Millheim a few weeks ago and invites all persons wishing any work done in the dentistry line to give him a call He guarantees satisfaction to his patrons.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf —Take notice of Harris' new advertisement on this page. They have their store at Lewisburg filled with a splendid line of Spring and Summer Millinery as well as a complete stock of Ladies' Furnishing Goods and Notions. If you visit Lewisburg, do not fail to call at their store.

—Andrew Frank of Oil City, Venango Co., Pa., and David Frank of Homerville, Medina Co., Ohio, were sojourning in town last week and in company with Thomas Frank of this place paid their brother Michael Frank at Wm. Smith's a visit. It was certainly a matured meeting as the four brothers are all aged men with white heads of hair.

—P. H. Musser, our popular jeweler, is advertising his business in this week's paper. He always keeps a nice stock of Clocks, Watches and Jewelry on hand, does all kinds of repairing in a satisfactory manner and is an obliging and pleasant young man to deal with. Do not fail to give him a call.

—McDonald's improved Liver Pil are the most reliable and satisfactory Liver Pills made. Many Doctors buy them by the thousand for use in their daily practice. No higher mark of confidence could be quoted. We do not know any proprietary medicine that stands so high in the estimation of the medical profession as McDonald's improved Liver Pills. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—The appearance of the cemetery should receive some attention at the hands of our citizens as Decoration day approaches. We understand there will be a number of strangers in town on that day and a neglected God's acre would reflect very little credit on our people. A general cleaning and trimmingup of graves and walks, which can be done in a few hours, would make a wonderful change in the looks of it.

A Long Snooze.

Rip Van Winkle slept a good while, yet had his sleep occured about 50 years ago, when Downs' Elixir first attained its reputation, on awaking he would have been able to recognize this friend of the afflicted, and might have taken another twenty-years' nap, and waked up to find Downs' Elixir at the end of half a century the most popular and the best Cough Remedy known. Also Baxter's Bitters for Bilious diseases, not so old, but good.

For sale by H. H. Tomlinson,
Millheim, Pa.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE AND COMMUNION SERVICES.—The quarterly Conference for Centre charge will be held in the Evangelical Paradise Church on Saturday the 10th inst., at 2 P. M. Rev. J. M. Ettinger, P. E., of Juniata District will preside, and preach at night at 7½ P. M. On Sunday morning there will be a children's meeting held at 9 A. M., to which all the children of the surrounding country are invited. Communion service at 10 A. M. and preaching at 7½. All are cordially invited to attend these interesting services.

BENJ. HENGST,
Preacher-in-charge.

—Dinges, Vonada & Co., sell the Tearsley Phosphates, acknowledged to be the best made. They keep three grades at the following prices:

Tearsley's Acidulated at	$3.25	per	sack
Chester Co. Bone	3·95	"	"
National Complete	4.25	"	"

Every farmer should try at least one sack this spring on corn and po tatoes. Call at once.

DINGES, VONADA & CO.

—A paying investment.—At this season of the year when your cows fail in milk, your horses become rough in coat, your pigs refuse to thrive, the hens won't lay as many eggs as they should, you will find a package or two of McDonald's Celebrated Tonic and Blood Purifying Horse and Cattle Powders judiciously administered an investment that will pay big dividends. They are positively the best Horse and Cattle Powders made. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. What other manufacturer dare make this offer. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—Mr. George M. Wolf, a son of Mrs. Rebecca Wolf, of Rebersburg departed this life at Kansas City, Missouri on the 28th of last month, where he had resided for the past three years, having been engaged in house-building. When cut down by the sickle-bearer Death, he was employed in the finishing of several contracted buildings. His sickness was short in duration, fever completing the work of dissolution within two weeks. The remains were deposited in a metallic casket and brought to Rebersburg by the decedent's brother, Mr. A. J. Wolf. The funeral services were held in the Reformed church at that place last Friday, pastor N. J. Miller officiating. Upon the arrival of the remains the funeral procession left the church to take a last glimpse of the body previous to its interment in the Union cemetery. Deceased was a young man aged 21 years, 4 months and 9 days. A beautiful bouquet of flowers was sent by his boss and fellow-workmen to be placed in the grave, expressing their deepest sympathy in a letter signed with their respective names as follows: Andry Burns, J. Berew, John O'Shea, C. A. Lawbly, H. Q. Wingle, J. Buck, Philip Lieurd, John Paulson, Harry Jones, Willie Hester, A. J. Sandburg, Albert Huston and Thomas Eldridge.

Mr. A. J. Wolf will return to his western home the coming week.

—Attractive posters for the entertainment of the Millheim Musical Association are being sent out this week. This musical feast will occur on Saturday the 24th instant, in the M. E. church of this place. Our citizens and the public of the surrounding country should attend it for a twofold reason: Firstly, the proceeds of this concert will be equally divided between the four Sunday schools of Millheim and we think our people should all do their share to contribute to this beneficial enterprise by their attendance. The admission fees will be very reasonable and almost everybody will be able to pay the small sum for a ticket.

Secondly, the worth of their money will be fully repaid by one of the richest and best conducted performances ever given in this or neighboring towns. The association has been ably drilled by Prof. Kurzenknabe for over two months and have already commenced to rehearse the solo, duet, quartett and instrumental parts to be rendered by some of our best home talent: First class productions only can be expected and we think nobody will have to regret having been there.

Tickets for reserved seats will be sold from next Saturday on at P. H. Musser's jewelry store on Main street, where a diagram of the church will be kept. Other tickets can be procured at the JOURNAL store.

For the Journal.

DEAR EDITOR:—I thought likely a few lines from me would be acceptable. We had a prosperous journey of three and a half days and two nights, and were met at Bridgewater by Mr. Henry Bollinger, who lives about two and a half miles from that place. Mr. Bollinger has a nice farm of 160 acres, well stocked, with a small but comfortable house and all the necessary outbuildings erected thereon. He clerks in his brother's hardware store, while his sons work the farm. The land in Dakota is very nice and I like it ever so much. We are out prospecting for land daily, but can not obtain any Government land for homesteading; claims can be bought however at from three to eight hundred dollars and deeded lands from $10 to $30. None of our party have any land as yet. I shall shortly commence to work at my trade and in the meantime watch a chance to secure a tract of land. Had I $500 at command those of my friends in Millheim who only gave me three weeks and others who would have me back by campmeeting, would for once be disappointed. Should I turn my face eastward again from this paradise of the world, it would be only because I can not secure a tract of land owing to my limited finances. Had I to-day five-hundred dollars, I would invest in a claim, and in a year it would double itself. As it is, I shall not give up the ship, until I am, of sheer necessity obliged to do so. If any of my friends have $500 at six per cent. to send to me, I'll guarantee them a safe investment, and show by my works that I have still ambition enough in me to live and work in Dakota, and, if God so orders it, die in this beautiful land.

H. H. WEISER.

—Rev. C. F. Deininger, and wife, from New Berlin, were in town a few days on a visit to their relations.

—On account of the unfavorable weather the Y. M. C. A. meeting, which was to take place out doors, was held in the Ev. church, and was attended by a good many people.

Y. M. C. A. meeting next Sunday afternoon at 4. P. M. The subject "Conscience" will be up for discussion. J. D. Lose is appointed leader of the exercises.

—Now that the sudden and violent changes of the weather occur every twenty four hours, almost everyone has a troublesome cold, which, if neglected may produce results that will trouble you for the remainder of your life. Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine is especially deserving praise in this class of complaints. It never fails! It never disappoints! Instructions for treatment of croup and whooping cough also accompany each bottle. Every family especially where there is children should have a bottle. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

George's Valley Gleanings.

Always welcome—the JOURNAL.

Samuel Harter's house is up and the carpenters busy at it. It will be a fine building when done.

George Gentzel is building a new barn on his farm. The carpenters will commence work in a few days.

The foundation walls of Elias Smith's new farm house were finished last week.

John Coldren finished the railroad bridge across Sinking Creek last Saturday and made a boss job of it.

George Rearick contemplates raising his old barn to the ground and put a new one in place of it this summer.

Platt and Anman, our masons, are at work building the wall for Samuel Harter's new barn.

Miss Amanda Grove has opened a subscription school at Beaver dam. She is a first-class teacher and parents should send their children to her school.

Our Sunday school is in a flourishing condition, but would be better still if the older folks would take more interest in the work.

There will be communion services held in the Lutheran church at this place next Sunday at 2 o'clock, A.M. Preparatory services next Saturday at 2 P. M.

MORE ANON.

COBURN BRIEFS.

Rainy weather makes business quiet in our town.

Mr. Gettig has enclosed his house with a new fence.

The house, which Mr. W. H. Kremer, our excellent railroad agent, occupies, has also a new fence around it.

Andy Stoyer's new house is nearing completion and will make a fine house.

Henry Kling is now occupying his new house two doors west of the church.

Mr. Seriff, the section boss, has the cellar wall built and will soon erect the upper structure of his new house on the street opposite the depot.

The gravel train went through here Monday morning to commence laying track on the extension of our railroad.

Quantities of fish are caught here every day.

Our stores are doing a thriving business.

Jacob Moyer and Sam'l Everet sport a fine match team of iron gray horses, bought some time ago in Snyder county.

Constable Ard was at Court last week.

Lamey & Sheasley expect to move their saw mill to A. R. Alexander's tract, midway between Millheim and Coburn. Z.

PENN HALL SHAVINGS.

John Condo bought a horse. 'Sis an Schimmel.

J. C. Condo must be doing a good business in trading new buggies on old ones, to see the string in front of his shops. James ought to advertise in the JOURNAL and be happy.

J. W. Bartges and wife report having had a splendid trip to Lewisburg, Mifflinburg, etc.

Sandy is pleased—the Mrs. has come back.

Whitewashing is all the go at this place.

Mr. A. G. Burrell of near this place has torn down the old saw mill, formerly called Ertel's mill, and will rebuild it this summer.

Wonder if the railroad company will move the station house nearer Penn Hall. There is a rumor of a branch road. That would strike us pretty nice.

Wonder what takes Charles over the hills so often. They say he is in the Millinery business.

The other night one of the boys went to see his lady residing about three miles from here, which distance he was compelled to make on foot when ready to go home, some unruly chap having stolen his horse and bringing it back to Penn Hall.

Mr. Orvis from Bellefonte was in town the other day, surveying for Mr. Fisher.

A lively time is expected at Spring Mills on Decoration day.

Constable Kline has put up notices prohibiting people to fish with nets. Now boys, better save your $25. and fish only with hook and line.

JACK PLANE.

Madisonburg Items.

Daniel Bartges has moved into John Limbert's house. Dan is one of our lively merchants.

Mr. G. Wolf has his new house under roof.

The frame work of Wm. Noll's new house is up.

Jeremiah Hoy, who had been confined to the house for almost four months by Kidney and Liver troubles, is at present able to take a short stroll over his farm.

Luther Stover found his cows last Monday at Luther Mench's, near Aaronsburg.

R. Grimm is the only farmer in this end of Miles township who is done planting corn.

John Grimm sold the old foundry lot to his sister Mrs. Pellman, of Hartleton.

T. F. Meyer and wife are at Milton, visiting friends.

Rev. Aurand preached a very interesting sermon on Sabbath afternoon in the Lutheran church. It is likely that he will receive a call from that congregation.

Our dental student says he will go through with his studies or burst.

SHIN BONE.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7th, 1884.

The evidence thus far adduced in the Kellogg case would be most damaging were the culprit any other than Kellogg, but in a land where courts are organized to acquit, who shall say that the jury shall be compelled to give weight to any amount or character of testimony? What a terrific mountain of evidence was piled up against the Star-route cabal, and how easily was it all swept aside through the agency of political influence! The point-blank testimony of Price in the case of Kellogg, starts him out with $20,000 received for his influence as a Senator in the expediting of two routes in Louisiana and Texas. Price dared not, or at any rate did not approach Bradly with his money, but he boldly went to Kellogg and offered him the $20,000 to boss the job with Brady, which Kellogg agreed to do, and finally did do to the eminent satisfaction of Price whose pay was then increased from $2,733 to $28,403 on one route, and from $7,380 to $22,367 on the other. It will probably not disturb the serenity of Mr. Bradly to be advised that Price swears that this money was to be divided between himself and Kellogg, and it only remains to be discovered from the testimony of Mr. Walsh, the broker in the case, whether the money was so paid, and if so paid—what are you going to do about it? I don't know what the line of Kellogg's defence is to be, but it is highly probable that his council will contend that it was a perfectly legitimate transaction throughout, and will place his client upon the country with the plea that they all do it.

The movement in behalf of revenue reform inaugurated in New York the other day, has done much toward encouraging. Mr. Morrison in pushing his bill to a speedy, if not a completely successful conclusion. There is no mistaking the fact that the present majority in the House are going to do their part toward lightening the burdens upon the people by reducing to the lowest possible limit those taxes that have been imposed by reason of the war. It is a matter of detail only upon which the Democratic members are disagreed, for Mr. Randall himself has repeatedly declared himself in favor of the identical propositions embodied in the New York resolutions. No one knows any better than Mr. Morrison, that human ingenuity is not capable of devising a measure that will subserve every local interest in the country, and if Ohio wool and Pennsylvania pig-iron and Louisiana sugar and Maine hackmetack and Massachusetts calico can not look out for themselves when it comes to Congressional action, it will be of no use to try to find anybody to look out for them. Very truly your friends,

DINGES, VONADA & CO.

Quarreling at their Wedding.

One of the most Peculiar Weddings that Ever Took Place at the Tombs.

[From the New York Sun.]

At the Tombs yesterday Jacob Goldstein, a tailor twenty years old, of No. 14 Bowery, was charged by Fannie Raffel, a pretty, black-eyed girl, sixteen years old, with betrayal under promise of marriage. The complainant said she had been engaged to the defendant about a year, and the marriage day was set for April 10 On the morning of that day a letter was received from the bridegroom saying that he would not marry her unless her brother would give him $75 to start in business with and get some furniture. The bride's father flatly refused to do that and Goldstein left. Policeman McCormick saw Goldstein enter No. 14 Bowery. Goldstein's father appeared and told the policeman that the boy would surely turn up at the home of the bride that night and make her his wife. The officer informed Mr. Raffel of his success, and that gentleman was so delighted at the prospect of the wedding that he prepared a $30 feast. The bridegroom arrived at the home of his sweetheart about 7 o'clock, and asked to have a private interview with Mr. Raffel.

'Before I marry your daughter,' said Goldstein, 'I want $75 to open a store in Baxter street. I suppose that will do for a while, but if business is bad you must advance me another $100. Then you must purchase the bed, a table, stove and a few dishes. Will you do it?'

'Do you want my answer right a-way?' asked the bride's father.

'Yes, and the money too.'

'Well, then, here it is,' and before Goldstein knew what was coming he was seized by the throat and kicked out of the house. 'You fool,' shouted the father, 'do you think I want to sell my daughter? If you don't want her just as she is, keep out of here or I will break your head.'

As he was leaving his home for work yesterday morning Goldstein was arrested. He told Justice Duffy that two years ago he was engaged to Fannie's eldest sister, Rachel, who, after getting $300 from him in presents, deserted him for another man. Mr. Raffel told him that he could have his revenge on Rachel by marrying her younger sister, and he would give him $75 and purchase the furniture. Believing what he said he engaged himself to Fannie.

'And I won't marry her,' he said, 'unless the old man puts down the $75.'

'Yes you will,' remarked Justice Duffy. 'You will either marry her or go to the penitentiary. You can sue the father for the money afterwards.'

This appeared to satisfy the unwilling bridegroom and he censented to the marriage. Clerk Jerome drew up the papers, and the bride and bridegroom had frequent spats.

'What do you work at?' was asked of the bride.

'I work at dressmaking,' she said, 'but after this I won't do anything. What do you think I am marrying for?'

'You want to sit in the parlor all day?' asked the bridegroom sneeringly.

'Yes.'

'And play on the piano?'

'Why, certainly.'

'If I have my say you will play on the washtub and on the sewing machine instead of a piano,' said Jacob.

'Stop! I won't have any quarreling here,' said Justice Duffy, and the marriage ceremony was performed. The court remarked after they left that they would be divorced within a year.

Railroads and Farms.

In value the railroads are next to farms in the United States. By the census of 1880, we learn that the value of farms, farm machinery and stock, was $12,104,081,440. The appraised value of all railroads was $7,270,000,000.

The gross value of all farm products for the year 1879, as given by the occupants of farms to the census takers, was $2,213,402,564. The gross income of all the railroads for that year was $770,000,000, which is only a little over one-third of the products of the farms.

But the product of the manufactories exceeds that of all the farms. It is $5,369,579,191. The value of the precious metals mined for the year ending May, 1880, was: Gold, $33,370,663; silver, $31,110,957—total, $74,490,620. The mining value of non-precious metals, coal, iron, lead, copper, zinc and minor metals, was $364,909,324.

These figures will give the reader some idea of the relative importance of the various industries in the United States.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

CONSUMPTION

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. DELAWARE RIVER CHEMICAL WORKS, BAUGH & SONS,

Philadelphia, Feb. 1, 1884.

To Farmers of Pennsylvania:

Gentlemen:—For over twenty-eight years we have manufactured Raw-Bone Phosphates, and our brands have become household words in nearly every section of the country. In many communities the demand for them has increased, while in others the sales have declined, on account of the preference for lower-priced goods. Six years ago, finding that the demand for goods of lower cost had become almost universal, and having peculiar advantages of raw materials and manufacturing facilities, we determined to meet this demand, and introduced a TWENTY-FIVE DOLLAR PHOSPHATE, made by a NEW PROCESS EXCLUSIVELY OUR OWN. The quickness with which this Phosphate sprang into use among intelligent farmers will be shown by the following statement:

Of the $25 Phosphate there were sold

During	1879,	1,287 Tons.
"	1880,	3,957 "
"	1881,	5,147 "
"	1882,	8,288 "
"	1883,	10,128 "

The reports of the action of the $25 Phosphate have been satisfactory in every case from a wide inquiry. We want to be informed upon this point very plainly, as it is our interest to know if the article continues to produce good results. We will thank any farmer, having used the $25 Phosphate with disappointing results, to let us hear from him with full facts.

Yours truly,

BAUGH & SONS.
